

A Major Distraction (Good to Go Book 3)

An unexpected show of pleasure and a lot of kink go a long way to throwing two combatant souls headlong into love. Major Brad Cava has watched his siblings fall in love. He tried marriage once it didn't take. He's not looking for love, just some fun with women who know the score. He's been in a dry spell for a while, which must be why that smart-aleck at work, Ms. Genevieve St. James, is looking so good. Granted, she's just his type. She has long, wine-red hair, knockout curves in all the right places, killer green eyes and a brain to go with the body. But she sets his teeth on edge with all her professional dictates and attitude at the office. Genevieve has no idea why Major Annoying, as she likes to call the sexy Major Cava, is always on her mind. When she inadvertently catches her new mystery neighbor pleasuring himself, she automatically thinks of Cava. To her mortification, she finds out Major Hottie and her exhibitionist neighbor are one and the same. Before long, she's learning there's much more to Brad than an amazing body, charming wit, and dictatorial tendency at work. They find themselves falling hard for each other. Until something strange happens at work, and Genevieve is blamed for things she didn't do. Brad doesn't seem to trust her, and she has to wonder if the love she's beginning to feel is one-sided. When the truth comes out, Brad has to figure out if he can risk it all again for a woman. Has he learned from his past, or is he doomed to make the same mistakes again with a woman he can't help loving?
