Catie Morgans fallen in love with Jamie Cameron, a modern-day Scottish laird. Did she once love his lookalike twelfth-century ancestor? According to the diary that she may have written nine centuries ago, she disappeared into the Highland mists on the night of their wedding. In the present day, a murderer is determined to make certain history repeats itself. She ran from the mist to the clear air near the fire and threw herself at him, planting kiss upon kiss to his jaw, his cheeks, his eyes, his neck. Oh, Jamie. Jamie. He lifted her to him. Ye wear my colors, he said. She laughed deeper. Because he was emotional and his Gaelic burr so thick she could barely understand him, she kissed him again and squeezed his broad shoulders. Her poor darling had probably worried himself sick after telling her to stay close to him--then her dozing off for a nap. Im all right. Really, I am. You can stop your worrying. But truthfully, he didnt look worried. He looked dazed. Ye wear my colors, he repeated. Aye, Jamie, she agreed, impatient to tell him she knew who had committed the murders. What is yer name, lass? This is no time for humor. Im trying to tell you that I know who killed--I canna understand ye, lass. Is that English youre speaking? Its me--Catherine. Dont you know me? Cameron, I challenge. Catie glared at the men walking toward them. Excuse me, but I need to talk to Jamie in private. Who are ye, lass? an old man asked. Catherine, she said. Why was everyone talking in Gaelic? Why couldnt Jamie understand English? Jamie set her down to the ground.

Catherine, ye willna be rude to yer king. Apologize. She frowned her confusion. A ribbon of fear wound up her spine, through her stomach and chest. My--my king?
