

Celebrate Leap Year with a boy and a girl and a not-so-simple proposal... February 29, 1908 - Wichita, Kansas - The Sunflower State Hotel chambermaid Felicie Richmond wants nothing more than to be the calligrapher for Wichita's prestigious Carey Hotel. She invests in a new wardrobe to look the part, but days before her job is to begin, an electrical fire damages the dress shop. Felicie envisions one way out: the Leap Day tradition whereby a bachelor who refuses a marriage proposal must purchase the rejected lady a new dress. Finding a few stuck-in-their-ways bachelors guaranteed to refuse her proposal will be easy. Three dresses should do. Figuring out how to overcoming the humiliation of proposing marriage to multiple bachelors.... Easy-going fireman Carpenter Yearly has no need for a wife, not with all the little ol' ladies in his church determined to find him one. When a strange woman proposes, Carp knows she's after a free dress. In a moment of mischievousness, he accepts her proposal, but after their private conversation is overheard, "Carp's getting married!" spreads like wildfire, and soon his precious church ladies have a wedding planned. For Carp and Felicie, the only way out is to convince the each other to call off the wedding...before love has time to bloom.
